About the Presenter

Guy Gomez, M.A., AMFT is the Diversion Outreach Coordinator contracted by the Drug Enforcement Administration to assist in our country's efforts to combat the ongoing opioid epidemic. Guy is currently assigned to the DEA Los Angeles Field Division and is responsible for coordinating and developing several key local and national outreach programs, to include: DEA Diversion Control Outreach Program; DEA 360 Strategy Program; DEA Citizens Academy; and the DEA National Take-Back Initiative.

Over the past 25 years, Guy served as a municipal police officer within Southern California, as a campus safety sergeant at a private university, as an instructor of criminal justice, and as a practicing associate marriage and family therapist. His unique background in law enforcement and psychology have given him a skillset of how to effectively approach the ongoing opioid epidemic and help others understand how drug use/abuse/addiction and mental health are both closely related and intertwined.

Guy holds a Bachelor of Arts in Criminal Justice from California State University, San Bernardino and a Master of Arts in Clinical Psychology from Azusa Pacific University.
